WHOLEWORLDMOURNS

All Civilized Countries Pay Tribute to McKinley's Memory.

Queen Alexandra Has Written an Autograph Letter to Mrs. Mc-Kinley-Memorial Services Held in European Capitals.

London, Sept. 20.-The London morning papers again appear with black borders and long accounts of the ceremonies in Canton and of memorial services and tributes throughout the world. The editoriais generally comment upon the widespread sympathy evoked.

"Seldom, if ever," says the Standard, "has a common sorrow found expression in so many lands."

The Daily News finds "this spontaneous manifestation of mourning" deeply suggestive and impressive, being paralleled only at the death of Victoria.

Several London theaters were closed Thursday night. Those remaining open witnessed some remarkable demonstrations. The programme began with the "Dead March in Saul," the audience standing. At the leading variety houses the "Star Spangled Banner" was also played and was received with ringing cheers and shouts of "Down with anarchy." A concert in Queen's hall, Sir Arthur Sullivan's "In Memorium" overture Tchaikowsky's "Pathetique Symphonie" were played in memory of Mr. McKinley.

Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain attended the memorial service in Birmingham Thursday. There was also a big demonstration in that city Thursday night in conection with the Wesleyan conference, when resolutions of sumpathy and condolence were adopted after the crime of Czolgosz had been characterized in terms of the deepest Queen Alexandra has written an autograph letter to Mrs. McKinley, which will go to the United States by the next mail.

Lord Landsdowne, the foreign secretary, intimates through the press his regret that illness prevented him from attending the memorial service in Westminster abbey.

Memorial services are reported from Berlin, Lisbon, Calcutta, Paris, Hamburg and other capitals.

Mr. Choate, in his letter of apology for absence from the King Alfred Millenary commemoration at Westminster, due to the death of President McKinley, says:

"The sympathy expressed in a perfect avalanche of telegrams from all parts of the British dominion is most touching."

SILENT TELEGRAPH.

t 2:30 p. m. Thursday Every Instrument in the Country Stopped for Five Minutes.

Chicago, Sept. 20 .- One of the features absolutely unique in history characterized the McKinley obsequies. It was the silencing of the telegraph. Never before since electricity was first put to use as a means of communication from city to city and from country to country has there taken place, it is said, anything paralleling even in a small way what was done Thursday afternoon on a scale that was gigantic. Upon orders from the officials of the different telegraph companies or upon the common impulse of the operators where instructions were not received, the entire telegraph system of the United States was suddenly hushed for five minutes at 2:30 p. m., the hour set for lowering the president's body into the grave in Canton. At that moment on all the huge network of wires from the Atlantic to the Pacific not a "sounder" in the land gave a single tick, and the great ocean cables were as pulseless as the corpse of the late chief magistrate himself. More than once prior to out the wishes of his predecessor. Thursday thousands of miles of railway and vast armies of men, industrial or military, have passed as tribute to the dead, but the cessation of the telegraph for such a cause or, indeed, for any reason, is without precedent in the world's records. It is estimated that fully 100,000 telegraph operators thus simultaneously paid homage to the memory of of wires affected was upwards of a million and a quarter.

Barnes who made the address of welcome at the reception given the president by the Knights Templars when in next Wednesday." he recently visited the Pacific coast.

liner Belgravia, from Hamburg, which arrived Thursday afternoon, had just reached the dock at Hoboken as the ly everyone stopped and stood for five minutes with uncovered heads. With that all work on the dock, with the noise of the engines and the longshoremen, was stopped, causing an impressive silence. Roosevelt Signed Brig. Gen. James M. Bell's Commission.

President Roosevelt Disdains a Carriage and Walks Briskly and Alone From Executive Mansion to Sister's Home.

Washington, Sept. 21.-The new president held a cabinet meeting Friday after returning from Canton, He was driven from the depot direct to the white house.

The most important topic discussed y the cabinet was the electoral law formed by the Cuban constitutional convention, of which, it is understood, the president's advisers expressed their approval.

The first official act performed by the new president was the signing of the commission of Brig. Gen. Jas. M. Bell. In elevating Col. Bell to the grade of brigadier general President Roosevelt gives the first proof of his announced intention to carry

About 1:30 o'clock, shortly after the conclusion of the cabinet meeting, President Roosevelt left the white house to go to the residence of his sister, the wife of Commander Cowles, of the navy, for luncheon.

Disdaining a carriage, he walked swiftly and alone. No one had known when he would leave his office, and as he passed briskly out of the grounds McKinley. The total number of miles of the executive mansion he attracted little attention, scarcely anybody recognizing him. He crossed Pennsylvania avenue into Lafayette square and thence up Sixteenth street to his destination. In the course of an hour and a half he returned to the white house, still alone, and still walking.

> Secretary Cortelyou put an end to the rumors that President Roosevelt would live in some residence removed from the white house. "It will be a pinch to accommodate the whole family here," he said, "but President Harrison's family was about as large, and they managed to live here fairly comfortable. The president will probably sleep under the white house roof for the first time next Monday night. Mrs. Roosevelt and the children will probably move

THE CZAR IN FRANCE,

ien. De Boisdefire, Formerly Chief of the French Staff, Received By Emperor Nicholas.

De Boisdeffre, former chief of It is Estimated That 20,000 People the French staff, and the baptism of the infant son of the Count de Montebello, French ambassador in Russia. De Boisdeffre was chief of the French staff during the previous visit of the ezar and gained the friendship of the father of Nicholas while French ampassador in St. Petersburg.

Notwithstanding this explanation, he nationalists, who only remember the part Gen. A number of beautiful flowers were also placed on the graves of the McKinley children, which are also protected by a patrol of soldiers, and any of the rowd wandered from the vault to the private lot. Many also climbed the high knoll in the new part of the cemetery, the prospective site of the permanent Mc-Kinley tomb and monument, all agreeing that it was a most appropriate location. These thousands of visitors at the cemetery were not from Canton alone, but hundreds came from neghboring towns. The court house was kept open all day for the accommodation of hundreds of people who had not yet seen the catafalque, and many people passed through the corridors during the day,

"The town guard of Cape Town has been ordered to hand in the magazine rifles and ammunition, ostensibly because these are wanted at the front. Martini-Henrys have been

The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, September 22:

BOLD ANARCHISTS.

Twenty, Armed With Shotguns, Guarding a Notorious Publication at Spring Valley, Ill.

Spring Valley, Ill., Sept. 23.—Twenty anarchists, armed with doublebarreled shotgens and 1,000 rounds of ammunition, are standing guard over the office of L'Aurore, the notorious anarchist publication, which expressed joy at the murder of President McKinley and satisfaction over the announcement of Assassin Czolgosz that he was an anarchist.

Meanwhile fully 2,000 citizens of adjoining towns have sent word to the authorities here that they are ready and extremely anxious to start at a moment's notice for this city and assist in exterminating the reds. The temper of the people here is at the boiling point, the defiant attitude of the anarchist colony having increased the general anger. John Gabilli, the editor of L'Aurore, has been in hiding ever since a recent mass meeting gave evidence of a desire to demolish his publication and adorn him with a cost of tar and feathers.

Monday a committee will wait on General Manager Dalzell, of the Spring Valley Coal Co., who resides in Chicago, and insist that he discharge every known anarchist in his employ.

The anarchists and their sympathizers number fully 500, and if this step is taken it will mean that one or two of the mines will have to close down until other men can be brought in.

The anarchist threaten to hold a mass meeting Monday evening. If they persist in this plan a riot is almost certain to ensue, and there can be but one ending, for the patriotic citizens here will be heavily reinforced by outsiders, who will come prepared for business.

"I don't call myself a society girl et all," said Barbara, looking straight into Miss Dillingham's face. "I have to work for my living." "No? Do you?" the young woman asked eagerly. "It must be very interesting. Tell me what you do?" There was not a particle of vulgar curiosity in the tone or manner, and Barbara did not feel at all embarrassed as she answered quietly: "I am a servant in Mrs. Ward's house. The 'hired girl,' some people call me.'

Miss Dillingham had leaned eagerly toward Barbara in anticipation of her reply. When it came, she evidently did not quite understand it. "The-the 'hired girl'?"

"Yes. I do the housework there. Everything from the marketing to the dish-washing. I assure you I have an occupation all day long."

"Some of it is," replied Barbara. *But some parts of housework are very interesting. It's not all drudgery," she added, looking bravely at Mr. Morton, although she was talking to Miss Dillingham.

Just then some new guests came down the stairs, and the three were pushed into the sitting-room. Miss Dillingham took advantage of the movement to excuse herself, and left Barbara and Mr. Morton together for a few moments.

"Do you think Miss Dillingham was a little surprised at your occupation, Miss Clark?" Mr. Morton asked, looking at Barbara intently.

"I think so. Nearly every one is. Aren't you?" Barbara had not meant to be so blunt. The question was uttered before she was aware, and then she stood more confused than at any time during the evening.

"Yes, I am," he answered frankly. "Of course, you are educated andrefined-and could be-school-teacher or-or-a photographer," he added with a smile that somehow relieved both of them. "Instead of that you choose to be a house servant. I have often wondered why."

Barbara colored. How "often" had he wondered? But she looked up at him and then looked down again. His eyes were very large brown eyes, full of thought, and Barbara was a little afraid of them.

Witnesses Alone Admitted.

All Irrelevant Questions and Hearsay Evidence Will Be Cut Out -This Will Shorten the Term of the Court.

Washington, Sept. 21.—The Schley court of inquiry reconvened, and before adjournment examined four wit-

Marines were on guard at the railing, and before the court opened, barred out all save members of the court and witnesses. Later Judge Advocate General Lemly arranged to allow members of the press associations within the railing.

The most important incident of the day was the decision of the court withdrawing a question, put by the court itself, asking a witness to give his opinion concerning a point under controversy. The witness was Rr. Adm. Higginson, who participated in the Santiago campaign as captain of the battleship Massachusetts. This vessel at one time was a part of the flying squadron, commanded by Commodore Schley, and the court asked him to state whether all possible measures were taken to capture or destroy the Spanish vessel, Cristobal Colon as it lay in Santiago harbor from May 27 to June 1, 1898. Counsel for Adm. Schley objected to the question on the ground that a reply would involve an opinion and not a statement of facts. Judge Advocate Lemly admitted that the precedents were against questions of this character, and the court withdrew this interrogatory.

It is generally admitted that this decision will have the effect of materially shortening the term of the court, as will also the court's manifest intention to cut out irrelevant questions and all hearsay testimony. In several cases the witnesses were admonished to relate only events mont, having the record of producing coming within their own observation. the merino sheep in America, will Adm. Dewey showed himself a prompt and methodical presiding officer. He called the court to order exactly at the designated hour, and adjourned 20 of which will be the merino. Anit just as promptly at 4 o'clock.

The witnesses Friday were Rr. Adn. Higginson, who commanded the battleship Massachusetts during the Spanish war; Capt. C. M. Chester, who Maj. Thomas N. Wood, of the marine on the Massachusetts, and Commander Giles R. Herber, who was executive officer of the Texas, the latter being on the stand when the court adjourned. The attendance of the public was small.

Capt. Lemly introduced as evidence a copy of the senate document relating to the Sampson-Schley controversy, together with hydrograph office charts showing the scenes of the campaign. "Now I will offer," said Capt. Lemly, "a chart showing the positions of the vessels off Santiago."

"I object," spoke up Capt. Parker, of Schley's counsel, quickly. "The chart is grossly incorrect. It places the coast line six miles further south and four miles further west than it is in fact."

"The chart does not prove anything," explained Capt. Lendy. "It is not put as evidence, but for reference.'

Capt. Lemly, the judge advocate general, then read the order of the navy department, appointing Adm. Ramsay to be a member of the court. "I ask you, Adm. Schley, if you have any objection to any member of this court," said Capt. Lemly.

"I have not," replied Adm. Schley. Capt. Lemly then swore in the members of the court, the three bending forward, and each grasping a small Bible.

Capt. Lemly was himself sworn in by Adm. Dewey, and in turn administered the oath to the clerk and reporter of the court. Washington, Sept. 23.—The testimony at Saturday's session of the Schley court of inquiry was unfavorable to the admiral.

Capt. Harber repeated his statements that the sea was not too rough to coal off Santiago, and declared the only signals observed off Cienfuegos before proceeding to Santiago were. he thought, between the Spanish forces.

Commander Schroeder, who was executive officer of the battleship the 9-year-old son of John Adler Massachusetts at that time, corroborated most of Capt. Harber's testimony. He declared that during the bombardment of the Colon the Amer. cian ships might have gone in closer. He also testified that Adm. Schley, at that time, had given orders to get away, saying, "Let's get out of this."

AGUINALDO'S BODY GUARD.

Mai. Albambra, Two Captains, Two Lieutenants and 20 Men Have Surrendered.

Manila, Sept. 23.—Aguinaldo's bodyguard, Maj. Alhambra, two captains, two lieutenants and 29 men, with 23 rifles, surrendered about 40 miles north of Baler, Island of Luzon, to Capt. George A. Detchmendy, of the 22d United States infantry, Saturday, took the oath of allegiance and were released.

Since Aguinaldo left Gen. Mac-Arthur's house for his present place of confinement he has never left the premises, although he is at liberty to do so if accompanied by an officer. The reason assigned is that he fears assassination at the hands of the partisans of the late Gen. Luna.

Gen. Chaffee has refused the request for the release of the prisoners in the Island of Guam. He considers that their release would not be safe until the surrender or capture of Malvar and Lukban.

Capt. Detchmendy reports that he has recovered a portion of the body of Denzell George Arthur Venville, the ill-fated apprentice of the United States gunboat Yorktown, who was one of Lieut. Gilmore's party when that officer was captured by the Filipinos in April, 1899. The remains will be forwarded to Manila for shipment home.

Gen. Frederick Funston, who has been in the hospital suffering from appendicitis for about a week, has undergone a successful operation.

You Do, or You Don't Need Glasses

The eye being a rather delicate organ, great care should be exercised in the election of proper glasses. Many believe that glasses should be restored to only when the sight becomes so defective as not to be able to do without. This is a great mistake which must be combatted Whenever there is unmistakable evidence of the need of their aid, they should be used. A neglect of this rule sometimes produces mischief which results in serious trouble if the course be persisted in.

Our Dr. C. H. BOWEN having just returned from taking a special course in Oplics from one of the best specialists in New York, is prepared to go the best o work, having the latest improved methods of fitting Examinations free. Next visit Thursday, Sept. 26, 1901

AAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAA THE TANGLE.

By Mary L. Pendered.

A LISON COLE was wondering whether she might not be able to slip away without offending her hostess, when a voice said: "Miss Cole, may I introduce Mrs. Kynaston to you?" and in a moment she was face to face with the one woman in the world she most desired to avoid. It had come upon her so suddenly that she almost lost her presence of mind, and a leap of color dyed her face so richly that she was painfully aware of it. The strange flutter of her heart and the mist in her eyes prevented her for a second from either seeing or hearing distinctly the individual who was smiling and speaking to her-a tall, plump woman of middle age, welldressed, comely, with soft, shining eyes and pretty teeth.

"I have long wished to know you, Miss Cole," she was saying, "for I have heard so much about you, and I love your pictures so well."

"You are very kind," Alison murmured faintly. So this was the woman! She had met her at last, after 15 years. Yes; it was 15 years since she had played, with James Kynaston, in the commonest of all tragedies, where love is the hero, circumstance the villian, conscience the stalking specter. It seemed a long while-15 yearswhen she had passed through Heaven and hell in six months, entering with wings and coming out a strange chrvsalis that was still alive and able to notice vaguely the other curious, wingless things about it. That state had not lasted either. She had moved. crawled, walked and learned to feel again, looking back on the past as on a previous incarnation, with but a faint sense of identity. Now-a great cloud of time was lifted; the old days were painted before her in a sudden glare of light. She shrank and trem-

"You can't think what pleasure you have given me over and over again," Mrs. Kynaston went on, gazing with frank admiration at the paling face in front of her; "those two last pictures of yours in the Academy-The Way In and The Way Out-are my favorites of all. They are exquisite! The expression of the woman's eyes in the one where her lover is seen going away in the distance haunted me for days. How can you put such pathos and life into mere paint and canvas? It is wonderful! But I do not marvel so much now that I have seen you."

Her eyes begged a question, but Alison could not ask it. She could only mutter: "It is very nice of you." Mrs. Kynaston, smiling sweetly, con-

"Your face tells me plainly that you know what suffering is, and that you are full of sympathy for those who suffer. Am I not right?"

"I-it is a question of art, you know," faltered Miss Cole, trying not to meet the earnest eyes fixed on her. "And heart. But it is all amazing. I have so often longed to be clever.' "Never do that!" Alison exclaimed, impetuously, adding, in a lower key:

("And he told me she was not responsive!" thought Alison. She said aloud, choosing her words carefully, for the ice was thin between safety and betrayal: "That flatters the clever woman too much. on James Kynaston's wife-perhaps meet him there, in the home that would have been hers but for the accident of having arrived late upon the scene of his life. She smiled, and wanted to scream.

"You are most kind, but I have little time- I-rarely call on anyone," she protested lamely. Mrs. Kynaston came to the rescue, in quick recognition of her embarrassment.

"I quite understand. Of course I ought not to have asked you. Your time is so valuable and you must have o many intellectual and interresting friends who all want you badly. Besides, I know what constant labor art of any kind, demands. My husband never has a minute to spare. It was the thought of him that made me venture to invite you; for though I am humdrum, he is not, as you are doubtless aware, and I believe you would enjoy a chat with him. Especially as he admires you so much."

("My God! How can I get away from her?" thought Alison in despair. She felt her face must blurt the truth to the eyes that watched it with such absorbed interest.)

"Really-you are-it is very kind of him to say so," she stammered.

"O, he has never said so in words. I know from his voice when he mentions you, and from his face when anyone else speaks of you," was the prompt reply. And then there was a Alison could not have spoken. Mrs. her hand. They were sitting in the deep bow of a window, behind halfdrawn curtains.

"May I make a confession to you?" she pleaded softly, "and beg your forgiveness? I feel that I must now, and clear my conscience. Years agoabout 15 years now—that makes us both seem old, doesn't it? But you like when we see it. We are made will always be young. Well, I had not been married long, and I was a silly goose, dreadfully in love with my husband, and continually tormenting myself about him. The fact is, I took it into my head to be jealous-frightfully jealous-of you, Miss Cole. I thought"-she stopped. Alison had drawn her hand away instinctively.

"Now you are vexed, and no wonder! But you will forgive me. Your kind eyes tell me you could not be very young wife. You know how blindly girls adore, how full of romance they are, and-rubbish. Then some one came to me and said that James-Mr. Kynaston-had been seen with you at a certain place when he had told me he was going somewhere else. I lost my head, like the poor fool I was, and taxed him with deceiving me. He seemed confused, grew angry and blustered, as he had never done before, and so-we had our first quarrel. Don't you think there was some excuse for me-just a fraction? For though you were not famous then, I had heard how lovely and attractive you were, and could see that he admired you. It only needed that horrid bit of scandal to fan the spark into a flame. I know I ought not to have believed it, but I was a foolish, credulous girl, and-anyhow, I was very soon ashamed of my jealousy and suspicion. Can you ever forgive me for wronging you so?" Alison tried to speak, but her lips trembled fatuously. She could only

I should bore you with my uninteresting affection. Yet if you ever need a trustworthy friend, if I can do anything to atone for having once wronged you in my thoughts, nothing could make me happier."

She took the limp hand formally extended to her. "Good-bye," she said, with a winning smile of apology and kindness still lingering about her flexible mouth: "Good-bye, I do hope you'll be happy, you deserve to be."

Alison shrank as if she had received a blow. She recovered herself quickly, however, and asked, on a sudden impulse: "Are you happy?" The other woman dimpled into a laugh.

"Come and see me with my children. You will not need to ask then." Out in the air Alison Cole reeled at first, then set off as fast as she could walk, under a drizzling rain, of which she was scarcely conscious. Her thoughts whirled deliriously.

"At last—at last we've met! Rivals and enemies, by all the laws of convention, yet two women who could have loved, and understood, and helped each other. She wanted to be 'friends'-think of it! And my face, that told her so much, did not tell her the truth, though I writhed before her. Thank God for that! Thank God she can still be happy."

She pulled up on the curb and hailed a hansom driving towards her. But of this cutaway princesse is finished moment's pause. For all the world, someone had already claimed it. Pink in loveliest tintings is a notably favored color this season, and that, at least, I have been punished among the beautiful shades are anemone, Venus, a delicate flesh tint as faint as cameo, azalia, a soft exquisite rose, just tinged with silver, much like the "dawn" tint of other ened to burn my very life away. Louis XIV. pinks are tinged with the faintest mauve, lige the old pompa-There was a long and painful si- dour shades, and still deeper tones of this beautiful color copy the hues of the orchid and chrysanthemum. All these dyes combine charmingly with reseda, opal, gray, fawn color, cream, apricot, magnolia white, and some of the pale yellow shades delicately shot with white. The latter mixture is like the "honeysuckle" melange of a year ago. Teal (or apricot) and pale golden green are beautifully blended in flowered chine and taffeta silks and crepe de chine worn at garden parties and evening dances, says the New York Post.

New French sleeveless princesse lresses, shaped very much like the old-style polonaise, but very frequently fastened at the back, are enumerated among the list of early autumn evening dresses. The armhole is simply finished with a triple row of crescent-shaped frills, a small pun, or else has a trimmed and scalloped cap. These gowns are likely also to prove one of the graceful articles of wear in overdress form, in diaphanous material above silk or satin, or, with the sleeves added, to become a favorite for wearing as a substitute for a street wrap of light wool or any of the handsome costume cloths. Again, this distinctively smart model can be used as an enveloping surtout-like garment en suite with a traveling costume of mohair, tweed, or cheviot. Made of eolienne or drap royal, it would nicely renovate a silk or satin gown that has seen better days, but is not yet worn enough to be cast aside, using the new fabric for the long overdress. The model noted at a famed designing house of this city was a French visiting-costume of finely repped faille silk, the princess overdress of double-faced cashmere. Another gown of silk-dotted India mull for evening wear was trimmed with the lace insertion and lace-edged accordeon-plaited frills of the mull, differing from the last-mentioned model in having short sleeves, a lace yoke, and being fastened at the back. It was very long and very graceful, and its style could be easily and effectively copied in many different kinds of fabric suitable for either day or evening wear. Another gown of closemeshed grenadine is cut away at the cop, like a low-necked evening dress, showing the corsage part of the silk underdress like a guimpe. The edge back, covered with cut-jet appliques, and dwindling to long nchu-like points that reach below the waist-

WORK OF THE FISH DOCTOR.

Official Who Has Charge of the Pan-

American Exposition
Aquarium.

The fish doctor at the Pan-American exhibition is a decidedly important personage. He takes care of his charges in health as well as in sickcharges in health as well as in sickness, feeds them with his own hand, tests the temperature of their water, oversees the cleaning of their tanks, and keeps as watchful an eye on them as a trained nurse does on a fever patient. Charts on the rough wall of the gallery above and behind the aquarium record the temperature of the air and water for every day, and also a list of casualties.

A writer in a daily paper accompanied the doctor in one of his rounds, starting at the salt water side of the gallery with a huge pan of chopped beef, liver, clams and strips of raw fish.

Taking a handful of chopped clam, the doctor scattered it carefully over the surface of the first tank, "to keep the fish from bunching up." Imme-Miss Cutting-I have a good joke owl. The real lively scene of the aquarium. greenroom was the feeding of live minnows to the trout. A bucketful of slender minnows was brought, and a Miss Cutting-She didn't; that's handful dipped up and slapped into the where the joke comes in .- Chicago tank. The trout gave instant chase, leaping and flashing, and fairly interlacing themselves in their mad rush. The contest was not as unfair as it seemed, for a minnow cannot be caught haphazard and swallowed offhand. If seized by the tail he will erect his dorsal fin and effectually block the trout's throat. He must be pursued until he can be caught fairly by the head, when he will slip smoothly to his death with barely a struggle.

This made the chase a lively one, but three minutes after the appearance of the minnows the last one had been captured, and only a fine rain of silver sparkles settling slowly to the bottom remained to tell of their fate. The feeding over, the hospital tank was visited. This is a rather big name for a simple wooden trough, with possibly a dozen invalid fish in it. An attendant produced a sort of stretcher, which he laid across the top of the tank, the sagging cloth making a shallow bag half full of water. Then with a dip-net he fished up a big white fish, badly affected with fungus, and handed it over to the doctor, who laid it in the stretcher.

Holding it firmly by the head, he it. But I would rather put up with his waltzing than be bored by his brainy bathed the unfortunate patient thoroughly with strong brine. To judge by the contortions of the fish, the salt must have caused some smarting. The process over, the physician slipped the exhausted fish back into the tank, where it promptly turned wrong side up and sank to the bottom.

FAME IS SHORT-LIVED.

Famous Anatomical Discovery of Mr. Fitzsimmons Forgotten by the British.

The genial gentleman who writes for the English literary paper under the name of "Arthur Pendenys" is completely mystified by the American slang in the inimitable "Billy Baxter's Letters," writes the Observer in Harper's Weckly. One expression used is quite beyond his comprehension. Billy, giving forth his ideas as to the proper treatment of a recalcitrant boxoffice man, says: "Soak him in the solar." Mr. Pendenys is amazed. "How does one soak a box-man in the solar?" he inquires. "Is this language a part of the American invasion?"

Alas, how transient a thing is fame! Only a few brief years have passed since Mr. Fitzsimmons discovered that vulnerable spot in Mr. Corbett's anatomy with such disastrous results The words "solar plexus" appeared in the headlines of every English and American newspaper of the day. And already the Cornishman has fallen before another and a mightier foe, and his greatest deeds are forgotten. "Sie transit gloria, Fitzy."

The Cure Craze. The ritual of the cure, and the solmnity wherewith it is practiced by the devout, is refreshingly humorous. At Carlsbad, if we remember aright, the first glass of water has to be imbibed sitting down, the second standseemed to be very much in love with | ing up, the third during a solemn procession of exactly a quarter of a mile; "That's just it; the thing got to the fourth, for all we know to the conbe perfectly ridiculous."-Fliegende trary, standing on one's head. The celebrated Kneipp cure, one feature of which is to make the patients paddle about barefoot in dew-soaked grass, and the "sun-bath cure"-the latest Berlin idea-in which the bathers sit about in the sunlight in what Trilby would describe as "the altogether," are some of the quainter manifestations of the "cure" craze.-Outlooker.
